Satisfaction at the White House Moss Asks Freedom of U. S. Information

CPYRGHT

Rep. John Moss (D., Calif.) spent an hour at the White House yesterday in the interest of "opening the flow of information" from Government agencies and said he was pleased with the results.

The Congressman met with Pierre Salinger, the President's press secretary, and press officers from the State Department, the Defense Department and the CIA.

Rep. Moss said they did not discuss specific cases of suppressed information, but he said the worse offenders in the past have been the Labor Department, the Agriculture Department and the Mutual Security Administration, none of which were represented at the session.

Mr. Salinger said later that the session was "mutually helpful" and that there will be others. He did not comment on the recent ruling that two flyers recently returned by the Russians may not talk about their experiences.

He did comment on the chimpanzee which made a successful round trip into space yesterday aboard a Redstone rocket. "The chimp has been told not to talk," he said.
